MASONIC PICNIC AT CLEAR LAKE HUGE SUCCESS

Wednesday, July 27, was an enjoyable event for the members and their families of the local A.F. & A.M. and Eastern Star as well as many from Edgerton, when they met at Clear Lake for their annual picnic.

In the afternoon many of those who are occupying cottages at the lake and who own motor boats, gave the visiting friends free rides across and around the lake. Later in the afternoon, a large number were in bathing and there was also an exciting soft ball game between the old men and a mixed group of young people. The call to supper ended the game. Here every one tried to do justice to the great array of splendid food. After the meal a number of new people were introduced.

There was also racing and various contests by children as well as older people and perhaps the most exciting of all was a sack race between a number of the men.

Friendship and good cheer was everywhere and at all times the key note of the gathering.

Men from Edgerton were chosen to play a match game between themselves and the Wainwright men. This was followed by a match game between the women of the two towns. Some were pitching horse shoes during this time. The grand climax came at a late hour when one of the men prepared a pile of brush to be used for a bonfire. As the flames leaped toward the sky there was an atmosphere of good will which was expressed in many familiar songs, suitable for the occasion.

Words of thanks were expressed to the people of the grounds for their kindness in permitting the visitors to use the grounds and three rousing cheers was the parting salutation.

Experts Estimate Crop Slightly Below Average

EXPECT YIELD OF 43,000,000 BUSHELS OF PRAIRIE WHEAT

WINNIPEG—Grain experts who have just returned from a crop inspection tour of western Canada Tuesday night said that conditions at July 20 indicated a prairie wheat crop estimated at 43,000,000, slightly below the 10-year average of 45,000,000 bushels.

Extreme heat during the past 10 days and lack of rain in parts of central and southern Saskatchewan may cause a slight revision of these figures, they stated, but on the whole crop conditions were reported to be fairly good.

Slight deterioration has taken place in southern Saskatchewan, in areas which suffered from drought last year, and rainfall is needed if the standard of the crop is to be maintained, they said. Conditions in Alberta, northern Saskatchewan and Manitoba were found to be very good.

Political Clashes in Germany Indicate Rule of Martial Law

FASCIST AND COMMUNIST LEADERS ATTEMPT TO SHIFT BLAME FOR DISORDERS—BULLETS FIRED FROM MOTORCARS IN STREET FIGHTING

BERLIN, July 18.—Declaration of martial law to halt increasing political disorders throughout Germany is being discussed in official circles as the Reich's Cabinet meets to consider internal problems.

Hardly a day recently has passed without serious clashes in various parts of Germany between Fascist Storm Troops and Communists or the Reichswehr. These have grown to such proportion that last Sunday 17 persons were slain and 125 wounded. In appealing to the various parties to exhibit more self-discipline, Dr. Karl Severing, Prussian Minister of the Interior, lamented that "knives and revolvers are taking the place of political discussions."

Although no decision has been reached following the recent trip of Baron Wilhelm von Gayl, Reich's Minister of the Interior, to Neudeck for discussion of this problem, with President von Hindenburg, the opinion is growing that the Government will be forced to take definite action unless conditions improve.

Already a detachment of the Reichswehr has been used to aid in quelling a riot. In Ohlau, Silesia, recently hundreds of Storm Troops fought several hundred members of the Reichsbanner. There were three fatalities and 41 were wounded. Police appealed for reinforcements from the national army.

LIBERALS ATTACK THE U.F.A. GOVERNMENT

STEWART, GIBSON AND HOWSON ADDRESS MEETING AT FAIRVIEW

FAIRVIEW, July 27.—Hon. Chas. Stewart, William R. Gibson and L. A. Gibson spoke Tuesday evening. Mr. Gibson dealt with the hardship caused to the settlers by provincial regulations. The member also dealt upon the government's negligence to obtain domestic water in rural districts. Mr. Gibson analyzed the financial situation of the province and pointed out that the mortgage on Alberta on which the taxpayer had to pay interest had increased $75,000,000 in ten years. The amount collected in taxes had doubled in a like period. He charged the Brownlee government with failure to give facts to the taxpayer. While the government had known for some time he contended they had failed to advise the public regarding a deficit of over $4,000,000 at the end of March. He criticized the government upon the wheat pool guarantee, placing emphasis on the debt to be paid with United States exchange. Hon. Mr. Stewart spoke particularly upon the tariff issue, maintaining that only by buying British goods could we obtain a market for our produce and cattle.

UNITED CH. BOYS AND GIRLS CAMP

The camp for the boys at Clear Lake, under the United Church, this year ran from July 30-37, and girls from July 27th to August 3rd.

There are 35 boys and 35 girls coming from various community centers as follows: Paradise Valley, Hinton, Edgerton, Auburndale and Wainwright.

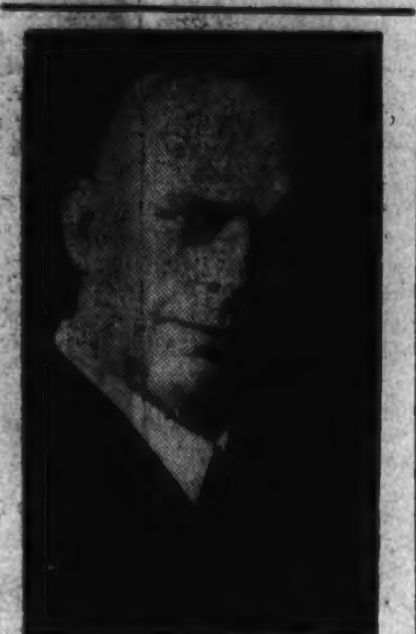

Mrs. Ed. Ganderton was cook for both camps. Rev. Huston had charge of the boys' camp and Mrs. Hackett and Miss Muriel Wittmann supervised the girls. Outside help from Edmonton included Miss Margaret Craig, who was Director of camp and Miss McKinley had charge of the sports.

Rev. Huston reports that the camp with the boys was a great success and predicts that the girls will have an equally profitable time. Camps of this sort are a good thing, as it enables the young people to form new acquaintances and acquire habits of outdoor life and at the same time they are, through their devotions, brought nearer to God and nature.

Mr. Love addressed the boys and Rev. Bainbridge spoke to the girls during their stay at the lake. It is the desire of the church officials to make this an annual affair.

DETROIT WORKERS ON FIVE DAY WEEK

DETROIT, Mich., July 26.—All departments of the city, including fire and police, went on a five-day week schedule yesterday. More than 30,000 employees are affected.

This innovation, an outgrowth of appeals of taxpayers for economy in city government, is part of the five-point fiscal plan worked out between industrial and business leaders and Mayor Frank Murphy, after the city had spent all of its income and borrowings and found it impossible to obtain new loans.

Fire and police, by staggering shifts, continue to give unbroken protection, but with reduced forces. The police personnel will be nearly up to the strength of the force in 1929.

The public library and its 18 branches will close on Wednesdays and Sundays. School teachers will not be affected, since they are already on a five-day week.

The short week and reduction in pay, provided for in ordinances passed by the common council last week, are expected to contribute $5,400,000 of the $7,000,000 budget reduction promised by Mayor Murphy when he and business leaders devised the new fiscal plan for the year which began July 1.

ASSERT MEN MUST BEG, STEAL, STARVE

CITY LABOR GROUPS HOLD MEETINGS OF PROTEST

CALGARY—Registering a protest at the treatment of transient unemployed, the committee of the Trades and Labor Council, at a meeting held Friday night, decided to bring the matter before a meeting of the council to see what action could be taken.

During the afternoon the executive of the women's section of the Canadian Labor Party held a special meeting and passed a resolution to be brought to the attention of the mayor and council and of other authorities protesting "the injustice suffered by five youths, who were sentenced to one week's hard labor in prison for ordering a meal in a restaurant for which they could not pay."

The resolution asserts that "the boys are being forced to pay the penalty for the failure of the authorities to deal with a situation in which thousands of people cannot find employment. When men are prevented by the police from leaving the city, and the authorities provide no relief in such cases, they are forced to beg, steal or starve." It also urges that where work is unavailable, food and shelter should be provided.

LOVE HOLDING MANY MEETINGS IN THIS DISTRICT

J. R. Love, M.L.A. for the Wainwright Constituency, is now on his annual tour of the Wainwright Constituency, holding meetings at those points where people wish the same to be held. Meetings have already been held around the Irma district at Greenwood Hill School, Co. Springs School, Albert School and Avonlea School. The meetings have been well attended and much interest has been shown in the problems facing governments during the abnormal period through which we are passing.

Mr. Love, in addition to dealing with problems facing the Provincial government has devoted much time at these meetings in analyzing the causes of the depression and in pointing out what must be done before a return to better conditions can be expected.

Mr. Love will continue holding meetings throughout the Wainwright constituency until August 13th. The Wainwright Constituency Convention will be held in Wainwright on Monday, August 8th at 10 a.m. The Hon. George Hoadley and Mrs. Hepburn, vice-pres. of the U.F.W.A. will be guest speakers at the convention.

CROP CONTINUES FINE PROMISE

CONDITIONS GENERALLY ARE FAVORABLE OVER PROVINCE SAYS A.P. GRAIN REPORT

In Central Alberta crops are generally very favorable and while some districts show the effect of drought, taking the division as a whole the crop situation is considerably better than the average.

There are some sections where crops have not made the progress they should have made owing to cool weather and too much moisture.

In Northern Alberta crops are making good progress, but at a number of points hot weather is needed to bring them along. With the present warm weather, however, good growth is being made.

Messrs. Gordon and Rodney Morris of Vancouver were guests of Mr. Jack Gregson of Fabry, a few days last week, who operates the Maple Leaf Oil products there.

VETERANS PROTEST SLASH IN PENSIONS

MARRIED MEN CUT $10 MONTHLY, SINGLE MEN $7.50

CALGARY—Strong protest is being lodged by ex-servicemen in Calgary because of the reduction in pensions received by veterans on relief. When the men reported to the department of pensions and national health here to receive their money, they found that they must accept reductions of approximately 33 per cent.

Single men receiving $22.50 were offered $15, while married men with two children were tendered $35 compared to the $45 in previous months.

The men were informed the reduced rates had been put into effect throughout the dominion and the government thought them justified because the cost of living had dropped.

Officials of the Canadian Legion have protested to the government at Ottawa. They declared the pensioners' living expenses were unchanged and maintain the cut was not justified.

Among those motoring on visits this week is Mr. Harvey Haveridge, who left Sunday to visit his relatives in Calgary.

ELECTRIC INDUSTRY BUILDS FOR FUTURE

FIGURES SHOW REMARKABLE POWER DEVELOPMENT IN CANADA

MONTREAL, Canada.—There has been a remarkable growth during the past few years in the Canadian electric industry, which is building for an assured future, and a slight falling-off in current consumption in 1931, owing to the unusual conditions, does not dim the story of consistent development.

Even last year there were additions to the hydro-electric installations of the Dominion to the extent of 546,650 horsepower, accompanied by an increase of about $24,000,000 in capital investment. At the end of 1931 the installations had a capacity of 6,666,337 horsepower, which represented a three-fold increase in less than a decade.

Output of central electric stations for March of this year was 1,402,656,000 kilowatt hours, which was only slightly less than for the corresponding month of 1930 and only 200,000,000 below the figure for November, 1929, which was the peak month in the industry in Canada. Capital invested in the electric industry stands at about $250,000,000 and has more than doubled in ten years.

Brighter Outlook Old Man Slump Has Struck a Rock

Following is a brief report as it appears to the Bank of Montreal in their report for July.

Various factors combine this month to produce a greater buoyancy in the general outlook than has been observed for a long time past. Outweighing all other considerations in this respect is the fact that the Imperial Conference has just convened at Ottawa—the most important gathering on matters connected principally with the improvement of trade and commerce that has ever been held under Empire auspices. In Canada as elsewhere, it is regarded as a high adventure fraught with possibilities of great advantage to the British Empire primarily and to world conditions. Difficulties in the path of the conference admittedly exist, but confidence of worthwhile accomplishments is firmly held. Until the Conference concludes and its agreements are known it is idle to speculate upon the issue.

The principal other factor making for a brightening of the outlook is that the Prairie Provinces approach the critical period of harvesting with prospects notably better than for the last three years, and that despite a late season in some other parts, the crops of the Dominion generally give promise of satisfactory yields. The price of wheat continues low, but the cost of production in the Canadian West will also be exceptionally low this season, and a bountiful yield of grain should change for the better conditions in all parts of the country.

Canada has shared too in the stimulation resulting from the success of the Lausanne Conference and from the announcement of the British

"Why, Erica!" Sally cried. "It looks exactly like monkey fur! You could have it put on your new coat."

"Whoever he was," said Porky, "he must have picked it last summer."

"If we only had a girl," Turk added thoughtfully.

To their amazement, Erica's chin quivered and she sat with bent head staring at the dead flowers.

All at once she arose and picked up the top clock from the pile at her feet. With her mouth pressed into a straight red line, she took Turk's arm and drew him through the open doorway.

"Turk," she said, "I want you to drive to the university."

At midnight Poly was sitting at his desk making crosses and circles on the margin of his open rhetoric. He heard a car stop and he heard a faint whistle sounding beneath the open window, but he continued to stare apathetically at the book. And he noticed that he had printed "E. W." over and over again.

Then he heard his name in a desperate, feminine voice: "Poly, Oh, Poly!"

Overturning his chair, he scrambled one made fun of them—and suddenly I realized a lot of things. I realized that withered flowers from you were so much more important than the people who were making fun of them. Do you see, Poly dear?"

He stirred restlessly, still looking at the stars over her head. But what he understood most of all was that he was somehow different in this moment. He was not even sure that this moment mattered for any other reason. He had suffered unbearable grief and he knew instinctively that he would never again find grief unbearable.

From this night Erica would be impotent to make him suffer to the depths of his heart. He loved her... but his love was no longer raw and unprotected and boyish. Little Poly had disappeared and a new Poly stood in his place, thinking about far away lands while he lightly stroked Erica's hair.

As if she sensed that he was not completely here, Erica flung her arms about his neck and cried: "Oh, Poly! You are such a darling!"

"Yeah?" said Poly in a brusque voice.

Advanced Payment

It was a blue Monday—quite as blue as it had been preceded by one of those wild nights of old, instead of by a perfectly decorous courtship call upon Miss June Chaffin, the heiress, in the bosom of her hopelessly strait-laced family. Edwood Graves woke to a snapping sound from the closet of his shabby luxurious lodgings. He identified the sound at once as the breaking of a string in his favorite tennis racket—and the county championships only two days away, with himself depended upon to carry the colors of the Kingsbridge Country Club to victory.

But the load upon his mind was weightier than that caused by the mere snapping of a racket string. By turning his head, he saw on the third shelf two pieces of mail which had been shoved under his door. He then squirmed about until, by reaching a silk-lined arm from beneath the covers, he was able to reach the mail without getting out of bed. He groaned as he recognized the envelope which was uppermost in his hand. It was from the big city jewelry house. He had expected another letter from them, to be sure, but there had always been the hope that it would not arrive.

"Oh, pshaw!" he exclaimed. "I'm sleepy. Trouble can keep at least until I've had another nap!" Unopened, he flung it from him to the floor, and dropped his head to the pillow.

It was an hour later when he hauled himself from bed, picked it up, and sagged into the armchair by the window to read it. His eyes narrowed, and his lips shaped themselves into an expression of petulant disgust and despair. The last paragraph was more than a threat; it was pure disaster.

"As you recall, in the conditional sale contract which you signed you confessed judgment in case any installment should remain unpaid after the due date. Unless you have your certified check for five hundred dollars by Wednesday, we shall immediately take steps to repossess ourselves of the solitaire ring, no matter in whose possession it may now be."

He'd been a fool, of course, to specify payments so infrequently and so large; fifty or eighty a month would have been much better. As a real-estate salesman his earnings were sporadic. He'd been a fool to get such an expensive ring in the first place. June hadn't expected such a large stone, even from her own background of wealth. Yet here it was; the ring which linked him to the prospective heiress of a half million dollars—in danger of being snatched off her finger by some boorish attachment server!

Shifting the load of worry for a moment, Edwood Graves glanced at the other missive. It was a gayly colored picture post card, bearing a Swiss stamp. There was a printed verse and a scrawled signature:

Mit de Mailli unespringe,
Lache, johle, juchse, singe,
Plause mache her und hie,
Gilt so lang mer ledig al!

Harvey W.

The young man tore the card across, and tossed the pieces from him with a bitter laugh. If it had been intentional irony, it could not have come more aptly. For Harvey Wilson was the one person among his friends who possessed both the money and willingness to help Edwood out of his difficulty. The card was Fate's grim reminder that Harvey was departing himself in Europe, far out of reach, with no immediate thought of coming home. The reminder brought it keenly to Edwood's realization just how hopeless his case was. Hopeless? Why, the engagement would be broken.

Of course, it would. June herself, much as she loved her fiancé, had, during the past few weeks shown unmistakable doubt of his affection and impatience at his lapses into irresponsibility. An engagement ring was such a public thing too—so visible a repository of a girl's pride. Even if no one else knew what happened, the ring would be missed; questions would be asked. No; he could not beg the ring back from her. Her father, old Chaffin, who did not approve of installment buying, anyway, and who, besides, could tolerate his future son-in-law only after a good dinner or in other expansive moments—her father would turn on him like a burglar who had crept into the household under false pretenses.

A measly five hundred dollars between himself and five hundred thousand! It was like having sure information of a lottery winner, and being without the price of the ticket. Worse; because the price of a lottery ticket could always be dug up somewhere. So could five hundred dollars—usually. But with his income almost annihilated through a slump in real estate and through his own inertia, with his friends as well as himself on the wrong side of the stock-market crash, and with his credit already overstrained by numerous small unrepaid loans to meet his living expenses, Edwood had no more chance of raising five hundred than the half million.

On a momentary inspiration, he made a decision—like he made all his decisions. He hurriedly pulled on his clothes, resented impatiently the time it took him to shave. He would seek aid from the one man who was the least likely to give it willingly—a man who understood him thoroughly and disliked him intensely; a man who, besides, had never been known to make a gift, and who nursed every penny as if it were the last representative of species about to become extinct. He would call on his Uncle Noel.

Noel Broadbent lived on a country road on the turnpike, about four miles beyond the country club. Edwood Graves got his car from the near-by garage, after joking with the man in charge about his unpaid bill. The car, now—this might bring as much as five hundred dollars, if one were a shrewd enough trader, it was worse luck!—the car were his to trade! But it belonged to his employer. Edwood had the use of it, and the privilege of paying for its upkeep out of his own pocket, and out of commissions, if any. There was no hope there.

Even on the way to Noel Broadbent's, with no thought of turning back, Edwood Graves toyed with ideas of other solutions, which might have been pleasant. If only he'd bought the ring, in the first place, from the local jeweler instead of going to the city to a house with a big name! No local firm would press him quits so hard, send him an ultimatum expiring in two days, especially since local people understood his prospects, and would be reasonable about waiting a while for them to materialize.

He made the turn off the highway and slowed down for the rutted dirt road. Edwood Graves was his Uncle Noel's prospective heir, too. A matter of thirty or forty thousand dollars present value, in real estate—rented farms, mostly. Sometimes, maybe, it might not be too far out for a home-site development. The prospect had looked big to Edwood not so very long ago. That was before he had won the prize heiress of Kingsbridge. He hardly cared now if Noel Broadbent should live forever as the latter threatened to do.

He came to a stop before the ramshackle picket gate, and pushed his way between untrimmed hedges up the path toward the front porch. There he raised his voice in a call. Noel Broadbent would not be far away, since he did no real farming, contenting himself with the care of some bees and blackberries in the two-acre patch on which the house stood.

Steps swished through the rank grass beside the house, and a stooped cadaverous figure appeared. Edwood Graves smiled and advanced. "Hello, Uncle Noel! How are you?"

"It's you, is it?" asked Noel Broadbent with no pleasure in his voice. "What you after? Money?"

"I came to enquire after your health," rejoined Edwood, still grinning. "Sit down, where we can talk." "Just as liek stand," said Noel Broadbent stubbornly.

"You're suspicious of me," said Edwood. "Why is it? Did I ever borrow a cent from you?"

"No. But not for want of trying. Just like all the other young spenders—want money all the time. Not sense (Continued on Page Three)

MINING FOR PERSONALITIES

TRIM THE EDGES OF GRAIN FIELDS

(Experimental Farms Note)

There are practical as well as aesthetic reasons for trimming the edges of grain fields. Weeds often grow along them, especially if there have been little end-srips in the seeding. The weeds on the edges grow strong and ripen many seeds which are carried to other parts of the field by reaping and threshing operations. Trimming the edges of the fields in July helps to keep farms clean.

A trimmed field looks better than a ragged one. Squaring off the ends makes about as much difference in the appearance of a crop as a shave and a hair-cut do in the appearance of a man. It gives an air of primness and the crop looks taller.

Any farmer worthy of the name is proud of a good-looking crop. The prouder he is, the better he will do his work.

It does not take long to run around each field with the mower. It will be time well spent. Character is judged and formed by such little things.

HOT WEATHER PRECAUTIONS

The summer season is a healthful time. Summer offers many advantages in the abundance of fresh fruits and green leafy vegetables provided, as well as the comfort secured out of doors in the fresh air and sunshine. Just because summer means hot weather, and because hot weather means not only fresh fruits and vegetables but such unpleasant things as flies and mosquitoes, attention should be given to certain precautions which will make for a more comfortable summer.

It is no exaggeration to say that sunshine is a giver of health. An overdose of sunshine will cause harm however, just as will an overdose of a drug, which, when taken in the proper amount, does good. Get out into the sunlight every day, but be moderate, and take time to acquire a coat of tan.

Souring, and putrefaction are due to the action of certain bacteria which multiply with incredible rapidity when warm. This is the explanation of many of the cases of what is commonly called ptomaine poisoning. As a matter of fact ptomaine poisoning does not occur. The condition is due to bacteria or germs found in food which has been allowed to get stale.

At all times, but particularly in summer, sufficient care should be taken to make sure that food is strictly fresh. Food that is tainted, soft or mushy should not be eaten, as such food has evidently not been kept properly.

When vegetables are eaten raw it is necessary that they be thoroughly washed. This is true the year round, and is mentioned here only because more raw vegetables are used in summer.

Poison ivy should be known, as for obvious reasons it should be destroyed, or if that is not possible, it should be avoided. Poison ivy usually grows as a low bushy plant, but it may grow as a vine trailing on the ground or over other objects. It is recognized by the arrangement of its leaves in threes. The poisoning results from a contact between the person's body and the plant. If contact has occurred the part should be scrubbed with laundry soap under running water.

The common house fly is not to be feared on account of size, but he is a dangerous enemy of the human race. For the reason that the fly feeds anywhere and everywhere, all manner of filth is carried on its hairy body. The germs of disease are those which cause putrefaction of food are very apt to be spread by flies. The breeding places of flies should be destroyed, homes protected by screens and all food should be kept cold and covered so that flies and other insects cannot contaminate it.

Attention to such hot weather precautions will make your summer more pleasant and more healthful.

Questions concerning Health, addressed to the Canadian Medical Association, 181 College St., Toronto, will be answered personally by letter.

TWO TYPES

A man there was
So dull and dense
He failed to use
His common sense.
He talked bad times,
Then wondered why
The buying crowd
Passed coldly by.
He then poked along
From day to day,
But could not
Make his business pay.
Another man
Of different view,
Rolled up his sleeves
Hard work to do.
He advertised
And spread good cheer,
The public came
From far and near,
He pushed ahead,
Despite the foe,
With bull-dog pluck,
HE MADE THINGS GO!

Says Prohibition Is Secondary Problem

NEW YORK—Father James A. Cox, crusading priest, from Pittsburgh, and expected presidential candidate of the Jobless party, returned from a tour of Europe Tuesday and said of his platform:

"Give them money to buy liquor, first and then furnish the liquor."

Emphasizing that he held the economic situation to be a superior problem to prohibition, Father Cox said he had always favored local option and states' rights.

He favored government ownership of banks. His advice to the bonus army in Washington was: "Stick till hell freezes over!"

He planned to go direct to Pittsburgh and later in the week to Washington.

NURSES' OFFICES MOVED FROM CITY OF MONTREAL TO WINNIPEG MANITOBA

MONTREAL—Offices have been secured here for the headquarters of the Canadian Nurses' association, which will be moved from Winnipeg this autumn.

Adjoining the central office will be the editorial office of the journal of the association. The Canadian Nurse, and the executive secretary and registrar of the Canadian Nurses' association and the editor and business manager of the publication will be in close touch with each other by reason of this arrangement. It was decided at the convention that, coinciding with this move, a full-time editor should be chosen for The Canadian Nurse. This appointment has not yet been made. The magazine will henceforth be published in this city.

The executive secretary and registrar of the Canadian Nurses' association is Miss Jean Wilson, R.N., who is well known in this part of Canada. She comes from Quebec and is a graduate of an Ottawa hospital and of the McGill school for graduate nurses where she specialized in administration. For the past nine years Miss Wilson has been executive secretary and registrar of the national organization and editor and business manager of the magazine.

Conversion Loan which combined with other factors have given a moderate upward movement to the markets for securities. An incidental reflection of the confidence in the general stability of Canada has been seen during the month in the reception of a $20,000,000 issue by the Province of Ontario, this being quickly subscribed, in large part by small investors.

In the process of liquidation Canada already has proceeded far. Capital structures have been reorganized, inventories written down, losses absorbed, and stocks, both wholesale and retail, reduced practically to a hand-to-mouth supply, thus putting business in position for a sharp recovery when the turn comes. Meanwhile, no change of moment in the general business situation can be recorded. Shipping has a fair degree of activity. Exports of grain from Montreal have been large lately, and are now about 2,000,000 bushels in excess of last season, while shipments of livestock to Great Britain are continuously larger than for several years past. The fall in the pound sterling and the rise in the American dollar have stimulated imports of coal from Great Britain, these having increased to 413,000 tons to June 30, a gain of 58,035 tons over last year.

The bane of business is still the low level of commodity prices. Taking prices of 502 commodities in 1926 as 100, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reports the index at the end of June as 66.6 compared with 67.7 in May, 1932, and 71.9 in June, 1931.

Foreign trade of Canada declined $3,300,000 in June, the drop being wholly in imports, the value of these falling to $40,743,000 from $44,041,000 in the preceding month. Total value of domestic exports in June, $40,945,000, compares with $40,594,000 in May. These figures represent a large shrinkage from those of three years ago when commodity prices were at the peak, but the June figures compare not unfavourably with those of recent months. Notable is the improvement in the balance of trade. Last month domestic exports exceeded imports by a few dollars, and in the twelve months ending June 30th total exports exceeded imports by $31,087,000. The year before there was an excess of imports of about $64,000,000. It is also noteworthy that in respect of both imports and exports Canada's trade with the United States has declined in much greater degree than has her trade with Great Britain.

The bright spot in the mineral field continues to be gold. Canada's total recorded output of which to the end of 1931 reached $537,000,000. The growth of production has been rapid, Ontario's output in the last half-year to June 30th having a value of $23,205,663. Quest for gold is now widespread, and in northern Quebec increasing quantities are being recovered. Production of base metals has been checked by low prices on these commodities. The mineral wealth of Canada is now known to be large in nickel, copper, lead, zinc and asbestos, and when commercial conditions improve, mining of such metals will become an increasingly important and lucrative Canadian industry.

Production of newspaper decreased in June to 161,368 tons, and in the last six months production was 150,833 tons less than in the corresponding period of 1931. This decline of 13% compares with a drop of 8% in United States and of 4% in Newfoundland output, indicating a substantial drop in consumption.

The statement of the chartered banks for May shows that the volume of business was about 7% less than the year before. An unusual incident was a decrease of $6,279,000 in note circulation, this item having risen $9,250,000 in the corresponding month last year. Current loans decreased $12,362,000 to the lowest point in many months, and against a decrease of $5,861,000 in notice deposits there was an increase of $3,345,000 in demand deposits. Call loans at home and abroad decreased to $16,400,000 in May last and $105,904,000 since May, 1931. Dominion Government deposits were reduced $15,372,000 during the month but still stood at the substantial figure $50,383,000. Bank debits for June amounted to $2,203,000,000, as compared with $2,694,000,000 in June, 1931.

In the foreign exchanges, the United States dollar declined to 13 1/4% premium early in July, but later advanced rapidly, reaching a high point of 16 1/4%. Sterling cables advanced from 4.01 1/4% to 4.12 1/4%, and French francs from 4.45 to 4.65. Other European currencies made advances closely approximating the advance in the United States dollar. In the bond market, the announcement of the British Conversion Loan brought a sharp advance in bond prices, with a good demand for high grade securities and a selected list of second grade bonds. On July 5th, the Province of Ontario offered a $20,000,000 14-year 5 1/2% issue to yield 5.81%. The loan was well received and the bonds are at present selling at a premium over the issue price.

Prairie Provinces—Wholesalers report fair demand for groceries and summer wearing apparel, with other lines quiet. Current purchases continue to be on a cash or short term basis and confined to immediate requirements. Retail trade at country points shows a slight improvement but is still greatly restricted. The grain market has been featureless and prices have fluctuated little during the past month. The export demand continues disappointing and the visible supply is considerably higher than anticipated. Cash wheat closed on the 20th instant at 54 1/2 cts. Livestock prices continue steady. Receipts are light and offerings are finding a ready market. Crop conditions continue favourable; practically all wheat is headed and is filling well. Recent hot showery weather has been beneficial to all crops. Weeds are bad in some districts. Insect damage to date is confined to scattered localities. An early harvest is indicated.

KING AND QUEEN GO ABOARD ROYAL YACHT AT COWES

LONDON SEASON CLOSES THEIR MAJESTIES GO TO SANDRINGHAM

LONDON — Buckingham Palace has put on its shut-proof coverings. The royal garden party on Thursday marked the close of the London season. The first part of the holiday of the king and queen began Tuesday when their majesties were to go aboard the royal yacht Victoria and Albert at Cowes. During the week the king will take part with his racing yacht Britannia in the regatta week. Following Cowes their majesties will spend a fortnight at Sandringham and will then leave for Balmoral.

EXPECTS LARGER JUNIOR COLLEGE FALL ENROLLMENT

CALGARY—Many teachers have indicated that they will take advantage of the first and second year university courses at Mount Royal Junior College next fall. Dr. George W. Kerby, principal, told the Herald Saturday. Numbers are finding that second year university standing is an even greater advantage than grade XII when applying for schools, he declared.

"Inquiries and applications are coming in every day from students who have just completed grade XI or XII," said Dr. Kerby, "and also from teachers who find it to their advantage to have the second year university standing when applying for schools. There is every indication that the first year courses, which are being offered by us for the first time this year, are making a wide appeal. Active interest is also shown in the applications for the junior and senior high school and commercial courses."

Teachers are finding it increasingly difficult to secure positions, even with a first-class certificate. With so many teachers available, boards are giving the preference to those who have taken some university work beyond grade XII."

enough to make it, or to hang onto it even."

"I've got a proposition for you," said the young man. "One that ought to appeal to you, particularly since I'm the sole heir named in your will."

"You seem mighty sure of inheriting my money!" snapped the old man. "I don't hanker to leave money where it'll do harm. Willa can be changed you know!"

"I know," assented Elwood easily. "Some wills can. But not yours."

"Eh?" Uncle Noel glared at him and started anger.

"A valid will can only be made by a person of sound and disposing mind," said the young man coolly. "The one you made in my favor—after your barrel with my cousin Tony—is valid enough. Besides, Tony and I would be the only heirs anyhow, if you left no will at all. But a man who's had two apoplectic shocks as you have, who's considered queer and not quite himself by all his neighbors—well, you couldn't make a new will now that would stand attack in the courts. You'd never know how your attempt came out. But I'm telling you in advance!"

The old man trembled with a mighty, inarticulate rage. "Why—why—" He found his voice at last. "You young whelp! You mean to tell me that I'm too feeble-minded to cut you off without a nickel? That you're as sure of my money as if it was yours already? You—"

"That's the size of it," interrupted Elwood calmly, lighting a cigarette. "The idea of my getting your money seems pretty distasteful to you. Well, that leads to my proposition. I'm willing to sign off, to let you leave it however and wherever, if you leave it in advance!"

you want for a consideration. Without the necessity of altering your will just name for me the beneficiary you want. Cousin Tony, a cat and dog hospital—any one you want. I'll make out a note to him or them for the amount your estate's likely to come to. A note payable a reasonable time after your death. And I'll do it in consideration of only five thousand dollars cash, payable immediately. Five thousand greatly exceeded his present need, but, if he were to sell his air right for a mess of pottage, it might as well be a mess of reasonable size.

In his cold-blooded plan, Elwood Graves had not allowed for the possible effect which his proposition might have upon the old man. Uncle Noel's face was almost blue with anger; he quivered so that he had to grasp one of the porch posts or support. The young man feared for a moment that his relative was about to have another apoplectic stroke. He hurried to speak soothingly.

"Come, come! That's not a bad proposition. We might as well face facts, and this let's you do about as you want to. I'm showing you an easy

ALL ROADS LEAD TO ROAM

It is characteristic of some public speakers to choose a subject like the above which is so broad in its scope that most anything could be said without committing himself to anything.

Disappointing as it may be to some of our readers, I am going to try to stick to ROADS, in this article. But this is an opportunity to open up a discussion with a Moral, Spiritual or economic application and my mind may lead me to say some things which will relate to all three. What I want to have on my chest, chiefly, is DIRT ROADS, just common old dirt roads. I can think of highways, with some pleasure, but when I think of some dirt roads, well I nearly have a spasm. You know what I mean. It's just a question as to who to swear at, when you hit one of the series of continuous bumps found in all dirt roads. I presume bumps are all right when you have some choice as to just the manner of bump, and have some warning as to when you are going to hit it. They say that bumps sometimes indicate something. For instance, you see a man with a bump on his head, you immediately wonder whether he is married or if he had been on a drunk, and it sometimes indicates both. Then some say that certain bumps on a man's head indicate that he has more sense along some lines than the rest of us, but I never could figure out much insight coming from bumps in a road. I think I do recall reading or hearing some novice say one time: "that the best method for reducing, is to ride over bumpy roads in a model 'T' Ford. The rate of speed to be determined by the amount you expected to reduce." Of course if you weigh 3 or 4 hundred pounds then you could not expect the car to notice bumps. The big problem confronting the public is this: Whether to build cars with greater bump resistance or fix up the roads. Perhaps we should do both. Well, I am not interested in building automobiles but I am vitally interested in roads, and especially dirt roads.

I was out attending a Farmers meeting the other night over north of town and one of the chief points of interest and debate, was dirt roads. There is so much that could be said on this subject but all I have to say is: "I am against it." That is, I am out of humor with bumpy dirt roads, and I am thoroughly in favor of fixing them up not only North but West, South and East. According to the advice given by one of the Members of Parliament, we should continue to hammer away for what we want. The people who live on good roads should be very religious, but if farmers who drive to town on Sunday morning, to church and Sunday school, should refuse to pray when the minister calls on them, you can just bet that he has all the religion knocked out of him in travelling into town over dirt roads. Moral—People in town should be happy and cheerful all the time, as long as they stay in town and the farmers, should be allowed to be grouchy, if they want to.

BRAIN ARISTOCRACY (I)

In the present turmoil and confusion people cannot understand why there should be so much poverty and unemployment. Faith has been lost in the present leadership and new leaders are sought to guide us.

In early ages Brawn was the qualification for leadership and the tribal chief was the physically strongest. That was the Aristocracy of Brawn. Followed an age of fallacious reasoning when leadership was developed by mental cunning and political intrigue. This was the Aristocracy of Brain.

Later came a divine right of rulers when power was inherited by right of heirship. Thus developed the Aristocracy of Blood.

As the right of blood to rule became decadent, there arose the Aristocracy of Wealth. Money, intended as a medium of exchange, became a symbol of power. Its possessors are looked upon as having great ability and are given the right to rule no matter how they offend the sensibilities of others.

A new leadership must be found in the man who loves his country and his fellow man and who is willing to sacrifice his own welfare to benefit mankind. The veterans who have offered their lives on the altar of patriotism should demand that in future wars wealth and industry as well as man-power be drafted in defense of their country. Centralized wealth is selfish and will fight long and viciously to retain its power over the economic life of the nation. It fears and hates organized Veterans.

Men whose patriotism and love of country cannot be questioned. It realizes that the next great leadership will lie in those whose first consideration is the welfare of mankind.

The Great Master drove the money-changers from the Temple. People are now searching for some leader who will drive the money-changers from our temple of government.

The great mission of the combined veterans of this country is to destroy the Aristocracy of Wealth and substitute a real leadership of personal sacrifice and human service—an aristocracy of service.

Fabyan Briefs

A very large crowd is reported to have attended the wedding dance given by the groom, Mr. Tonney Dabbs at the Fabyan school. Music was supplied by the Fraser boys and their famous orchestra. The floor was handled by Mr. MacDonald. After the dance a bountiful supper was supplied by the newly weds with the help of a few friends. Every body had a wonderful time and it was the wee hours of the morning when people went home.

The bride and groom will soon be at home on the old Jones place. Their many friends wish them continued happiness and prosperity.

Miss Irene Mills, of Wainwright, was visiting Mr. and Mrs. MacDonald, over the week end.

Mr. Frank Guy and Mr. C. Fraser, of the refining staff, motored to the city Saturday on business.

SATISFACTION OR MONEY REFUNDED SAYS HOTEL

At first blush it would seem that an English hotel has reached the nth degree of fairness in its attitude toward its guests. Following a description of its charms, set forth in dignified British phraseology, shorn of all—or at any rate, nearly all—superlatives or redundant verbiage, comes this reassuring statement: culled from the hotel's quite alluring booklet:

Unless you are completely satisfied we shall politely but firmly refuse to charge you.

This open-handed liberality makes such commonplace slogans as "the patron is always right" shrink to downright giggardiness, leaving the reader cold and unimpressed. It dwarfs the generosity of Maecenas, the mantle of whose affluence must, quite obviously, have descended upon the management.

Carping critics of course there will vice-president, Canadian National Railways, said in a recent interview. "One good crop will not, of course, bring things back to normal," stated Mr. Warren, "but across the whole of the Prairie Provinces things look better than they have done for many years. Practically all areas have enjoyed sufficient moisture to ensure good growth and filling of the wheat. Southern Saskatchewan, which last year suffered severely from drought, is in good shape this year, generally speaking, and the people are showing a remarkable display of courage in their determination to stick things out. In all sections of the West, people have adjusted themselves to present economic conditions. Every economy which can be effected in farming practices seems to be in use. The harvesting of the promised heavy crop will, of course, bring about a heavy railroad movement of wheat to the Lakehead and seaboard and this will help the unemployed situation by providing work for the necessary train crews and other workers required. A thorough survey of the situation is being made and cars and locomotives required for the handling of the grain movement are being gradually concentrated at strategic points throughout the prairies."

ORANGE ANNUAL SERVICE AT RIBSTONE

A large crowd was in attendance at the Annual Orange meeting held at Ribstone last Sunday at 3.30 P.M. Rev. Ricker of the United Church at Ribstone, assisted Rev. Brooker of Wainwright in the conducting of the services.

WEDDING BELLS

On July 26th, at the United Church manse, the pastor, Rev. W. Huston, joined in holy matrimony, Miss Ethel M. Lea Wilson to Mr. Robert M. Hiltz both being from Kitaco. The happy couple left for a short motor trip after which they will take up residence on the groom's farm.

Clear Lake Waves

Work on the new road on the west side of Clear Lake has commenced. It will greatly improve traffic. It will eliminate a steep uphill climb and add to the scenic beauty.

Mr. Axel Malemburg has taken up his residence at Clear Lake. His house is on wheels and can be easily transported to any desired point.

The Masonic picnic held on Wainwright Beach, last Wednesday, was well attended, and every one reported a good time.

Open air services were held on the Edgerton camping grounds last Sunday.

Among the many visitors at Clear Lake this week is Miss Jessie Young of Edmonton. She is the guest of Mrs. W. J. Bartlett.

Mr. and Mrs. Plimpton are taking up their residence in the cottage of Dr. Coursier for the month of August.

The Girl's camp is now in session at Shorncliffe beach.

he who will find a flaw in this ultra modern Bonifacian attitude—captious, prying folk who will fuss around and discover some fly in the ointment. Suppose the parting guest insists on paying his bill willy-nilly, what then? Because, if the reader will turn back to that part of the announcement quoted above, he will see that the management, while determined always to be polite, nevertheless insists also on being firm. And everyone knows that when an Englishman is firm his immobility assumes a rock-like quality. Perhaps its nearest counterpart is found in that well-known New England trait which is best described as "set."

In such contingency, the hotel management might easily find itself confronted with the dilemma in which an American department store is stated to have found itself. Proceeding on the basis of its unshakable policy that the customer is always right, the store sought to remedy a certain matter altogether to the customer's advantage, an adjustment, however, which he obstinately declined, insisting that he wasn't right, but wrong.

So long as the hotel is dealing with Englishmen, the hypothetical case of a guest refusing free accommodation might lead to nothing more serious than letters to The Times, but argument with a foreigner standing upon his inalienable right to foot his bill might lead to international difficulties—who knows?—perhaps another little tangle for some League of Nations committee carefully to unravel.

OBITUARY

MRS. ANNA ZAJIC

Some weeks ago Mrs. Anna, wife of John Zajic was afflicted with a stroke, and every thing in the way of comfort and medical skill was done for her. In order to make her as comfortable as possible she was removed to the Wainwright hospital where after some weeks of suffering,
she was taken home on Friday night,
July 29, 1932, at the age of 69 years.
Those who knew Mrs. Zajic, are deeply grieved to lose her, nevertheless, death was a relief from suffering, but her influence will linger long, not only in the memory of her immediate family but she will be deeply mourned by a large circle of friends. Beside the many friends, she leaves to mourn her departure her aged husband, John Zajic, Sr., and three sons, Joe, who resides in the States (Cleveland, Ohio); and who paid her a visit shortly before her death, and Frank and John Jr., both of whom live in the Hope Valley vicinity near Edgerton, on the old homestead.

The funeral took place Sunday afternoon, July 31st from the McLeod undertaking parlors and thence to the St. Luke's Church in Wainwright.

Interment took place in Wainwright cemetery. At the close of the service Rev. Father Doyle, in a few beautifully chosen words, bore testimony to the splendid character and work as well as the many virtues of the deceased. She was preceded by her daughter some years ago.

Beautiful floral offerings were in evidence. Two large wreaths from the family and sprays from the following friends: Mrs. Monaghan and family, Mr. and Mrs. J. Black, Sr., Mr. and Mrs. A. Gibson and family, and The Horn family.

The pallbearers were as follow:
John Black, Tom McAfee, Ed. Knott, Giles James, Marshall Rubblee and John Taylor.

CARD OF THANKS

Mr. John Zajic, husband, and sons
Joe, Frank and John Jr. of Hope Valley, take this opportunity of extending to their many friends, also to the Wainwright hospital staff, their heartfelt appreciation of the sympathies and love shown them in their recent and bereavement by the loss of a loving wife and daughter and also for the beautiful floral tributes in respect and esteem.

Lake to attend the boys camp. All report a good time. Here's three cheers!

on the Battlevue picnic grounds on Wednesday, July 20th, was quite a success.

U.F.W.A. cake.

The dance after the picnic was held at the community hall. There was good music and a good crowd.

WAINWRIGHT BAND CONCERT

The Wainwright Band put on a free concert Saturday night about 8 o'clock. It is to be regretted that more of our friends from the country could not get in earlier, as the boys did well and those who heard the music, thoroughly enjoyed it. Every body came in early next Saturday evening.

A meeting of the Sunday School
Mission was held in the I. O. O. F. hall last Sunday afternoon. A good crowd was in attendance.

UNION DEPOT SHOWING AT ELITE THEATRE

It is difficult to create in words the atmosphere of this story, and inasmuch as the background is responsible for much comedy, romance and tragedy, the following synopsis merely outlines the dramatic highlights as they apply to the central characters.

Chic (Douglas Fairbanks, Jr.) and Scrap Iron (Guy Kibbee), hoboes, pick up a grip left by a soue in Union Depot. It contains clothes and much money. Chic dresses up, poses as a rich traveller, treats Ruth (Joan Blondell), a stranded actress he has met, and promises her a railroad ticket. He leaves her temporarily to locate Scrap Iron.

Scrap Iron has found a baggage check. Chic redeems it and is given a violin case stuffed with greenbacks.
Leaving Scrap Iron in a shack to guard the money Chic returns to Ruth and sends her out to get a new dress. Bernardi, a madman, over-hears Chic's promise to get her a ticket. He buys one himself and sends it to the store. Thinking it from Chic, Ruth takes it and goes to the train. Bernardi follows and locks himself in the stateroom with her.

The showwoman finds Ruth's money is counterfeit. She calls the cops. Kendall, secret service man, rushes to the train. He finds Chic battering down the stateroom door.
Bernardi escapes and is killed by a passing train. Kendall arrests Ruth as a counterfeiter. Chic takes the blame and offers to reveal the rest of the money. Kendall sends a cop with him, promising freedom if the case contains the remaining counterfeit bills.

Scrap Iron has disappeared. The violin case is found filled with coal.
Nearby, the real counterfeiter shoots the cop and tries to escape. Chic catches him and pummels him until both are arrested. A patrol wagon draws up with a drunk who proves to be Scrap Iron with the rest of the money.
The counterfeiter is locked up. Chic and Ruth are freed. They board the train and the picture ends with an unexpected and delightful surprise.

Hints for the Household

ORANGE AMBROSIA DESSERT SALAD (Serves 4-6)

This is a modern version, adapted to salad serving, of the ambrosia, which was Grandmother's favorite company dessert. Ambrosia, by the way, was the food served the Greek gods in their feasts on Mount Olympus. While this ambrosial and delicious combination of orange coconut will not confer the immortality given by the ambrosia of the gods, it is a dessert par excellence for better health.

6 oranges
2 1/2 cups strained honey
1 can coconut

Peel oranges, removing skin down to juicy pulp. Cut in slices and cut slices in half. Dip each piece of orange in honey which is placed in a shallow dish, then in coconut. Arrange on crisp lettuce leaves. Serve with whipped cream to which a little mayonnaise has been added.

ORANGE BANANA SALAD (Serves 6)

3 oranges
Lettuce
2 bananas
2 tablespoons lemon juice
Walnut meats

Peel oranges and cut into 1/4-inch slices. On lettuce-covered salad plate place 2 orange slices. Cover with 2 lengthwise quarters of bananas, sprinkled with lemon juice. Top with slice of orange. Garnish with lemon mayonnaise and walnut meats.

ORANGE FILLING (Sufficient for 1 two-layer cake)

1 egg
6 tablespoons sugar
2 1/4 tablespoons cornstarch
1/2 cup water
1/2 cup orange juice
1/2 teaspoon grated orange rind
1 tablespoon butter

Beat egg, add sugar and cornstarch. Mix well. Add water, juice and rind. Cook in double boiler 15 minutes, stirring frequently. Add butter. Cool before spreading on cake.

Orange Date Filling (Sufficient for 1 two-layer cake)

Add 1 1/2 cup chopped dates to Orange Filling.

BREAKFAST FOOD SURPRISES By Betty Barclay

Some of the most delightful dinner dishes imaginable may be prepared from breakfast cereals. If your children do not care for vegetables, try either of the following—not only because of their cellulose "vegetable effect" but because of their delicious-ness as well:

Banana Betty
2 cups rice flakes, crushed
1/2 cup butter, melted
2 apples
2 bananas
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
1/2 cup water
2 tablespoons lemon juice

Pour melted butter over rice flakes crumbs and mix thoroughly. Place a layer of one-third the prepared crumbs in bottom of buttered baking dish. Cover with 1 apple and 1 banana pared, and thinly sliced. Sprinkle with half the sugar, cinnamon, and lemon juice. Cover with another layer of crumbs and repeat, using remaining fruit and seasonings. Pour water over mixture. Bake in moderate hot oven (375 degrees F.) 30 minutes. Serves 6.

Crumble Pudding
3 eggs
1 cup rice flakes, crushed
1 cup sugar
1/2 cup nuts, chopped
1 cup dates, chopped

Beat egg yolks and add to dry ingredients which have been thoroughly mixed. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour into buttered loaf pan and bake in a moderate hot oven (375 degrees F.) 45 minutes. Crumble and pile in sherbet glasses. Serve with whipped cream or lemon sauce. May be served hot or cold. Serves 6.

FROZEN FRUIT COCKTAIL (Serves 6-8)

1/2 cup crushed pineapple, drained
2 cups orange pulp
1/2 cup grapefruit pulp
Mix thoroughly. Freeze in mold packed with 4 parts ice and 1 part salt for 3 hours.

ORANGE JUICE OVER FRUIT FOR REDUCING

For those whose training diets are confined to removing over-plump curves, the suggestion is made that orange juice replace cream as an accompaniment for berries and other summer fruits, such as peaches. Table cream has 30 calories per tablespoon, it is pointed out, while orange juice has but 5 1/2 calories. A dessert of orange juice and fruit is much to be preferred these summer days to a heavy pastry.

One very delicious combination is to cover strawberries with orange juice add a bit of powdered sugar and serve very cold. In small portions this makes a delightful appetizer course; in larger portions it is a delectable dessert.

HUCKLEBERRY SURPRISE

1 package lemon junket
Fresh huckleberries
1 pint milk (or 1 cup milk and 1 cup light cream)
Sort and wash fresh huckleberries. Put a heaping tablespoon in the bottom of each five dessert glasses. Prepare junket according to directions on package. Pour at once over the huckleberries. The berries will come to the top and make a tempting dish. Let stand undisturbed until firm—about 10 minutes. Chill and serve.

FRUIT MEAL SALAD (Serves 1)

On lettuce-covered salad plate, center a mound of cottage cheese (1 1/2 tablespoons). Around this at equal distances arrange 3 piles of orange slices. In spaces between oranges place 3 or 4 stoned dates (first space) 1 dessert spoon seeded raisins (second space); 5 walnut meat halves (third space).

Serve with French dressing. With buttered roll and a beverage this makes a very well-balanced luncheon.

YOUTH IN KANSAS RALLY TO DEFEND PROHIBITION ACT

WICHITA, Kan., July 18—Young people of Wichita and vicinity staged the longest parade Friday in the history of this community. It was a line of motorcars in support of prohibition. There were approximately 2500 participants, the majority of whom were young people and they passed in review before a crowd estimated at 15,000.

A Doctor's Advice to His Critics

Condensed from The Forum (June '32)
ANONYMOUS

I am a doctor. I manage somehow to read a little, and I note in the magazines many more or less violent assaults on the inadequacy of the medical profession. It might be interesting to a layman to hear a suggestion from the other side.

There is, I fear, a shocking ignorance among laymen of the limitations of medicine. You ask of us the impossible and get irritated when we cannot deliver, but you apparently never look about you. Don't doctors get sick like anybody else? Don't their own parents and brothers and wives and children die just like yours? My own mother has been sick ever since I could remember and I am 39. My father has high blood pressure. I myself suffer from migraines (sick headache), and have had appendicitis, mastoiditis, rheumatism, and a few other things. Why do I stand for all this nonsense? Why don't I cure out the medical profession? Because I know what are the boundaries of their knowledge, and I know that they are doing the best they can.

There are so many things in medicine which are very vaguely or imperfectly understood! Nobody understands cancer, chronic nephritis, myocardial degeneration, and other such captains of the men of death. Nobody has any adequate proof of the cause of rheumatic fever, influenza, measles, or common colds. With few exceptions the whole range of endocrine disturbances is in a very unsatisfactory condition. The same applies to nervous and mental diseases. And so it goes. I could fill a page with an enumeration of conditions before which we are ignorant or helpless.

From this you may conclude that medicine is in a medieval condition. But you are wrong again. As a matter of fact, medicine is making astounding progress, and I would hesitate to set any limit to what may ultimately be accomplished. I base this statement on the actual record of solid achievement in the past. My great-grandfather was a doctor of a sort but he never went to medical school. He was a blacksmith who bled people and pulled teeth. My great-grandfather was a doctor and a graduate from a Class A school in 1821. He bled and he blistered and he puked and he purged—and this was about his armamentarium. He didn't even have ether or chloroform.

My grandfather was a doctor and graduated from a Class A school in 1857. Bacteria were unknown. His appendicitis patients died of "cramp colic" and "locked bowels." He didn't know that tuberculosis was communicable. He did not have a fever thermometer.

My father was a doctor and graduated from a Class A school in 1884. Diphtheria was rampant and deadly, and so was typhoid fever. He did not have vaccines for them; nor thyroid extract nor adrenalin nor pituitrin. Blood transfusion was unknown. He didn't even have an X-ray. Radium had not been discovered. He did not have local anesthetics. He could not even take a blood pressure. Pathological and clinical microscopy were just

The Allied Youth of Wichita, an organization composed of young men and women who will cast their first votes for President this year, instigated the demonstration, partly to stiffen prohibition supporters against a wet wave that was claimed to be sweeping the country, and partly to show that dry ranks had not been thinned to the extent that was supposed.

Miss Bertha Neff, Wichita college girl, was chairman of the organization sponsoring the parade, and through her efforts, 50 floats and several hundred decorated cars were assembled. Nearly all of the towns around Wichita, as well as local churches, fraternal organizations, clubs, business houses and candidates were represented.

Probably every argument developed in the long-drawn-out wet-dry debate in the United States was portrayed on the vehicles either by banners, pictures or by tableaux.

beginning. He didn't know that yellow fever was transmitted by mosquitoes nor had he heard of hookworms.

I am a doctor and graduated from a Class A school in 1920. I did not even have insulin for diabetes, nor liver extract for pernicious anemia, nor scarlet fever serum nor the malarial treatment for parents, nor a host of other things. Insulin and liver extract, for instance, are both veritable epics in man's struggle against disease. The public, fed on mass production, wants an epic week at least.

Even if doctors knew the exact diagnosis and the proper treatment they might still be helpless. Every day my hands are tied and I am reduced to impotence by things over which I have no control. The doctor advises an operation; the patient refuses. What can the doctor do? Nothing. Patients will not follow a prescribed diet; they will not even take their medicines; not infrequently they will pay no attention whatever to any advice given them. They object to adequate examination; they resent questioning; they lie in giving histories.

But that is only the beginning of the trouble. Even if the patient is perfect, can he pay for proper care? In a shocking proportion of cases the answer is: no. As medicine has become better and more extensive in diagnosis and treatment it has become more expensive. As it enlists more appliances and better facilities, the cost increases. My great-grandfather's patient with an acute appendicitis probably got a purgative and a mustard plaster, which cost him little—except his life. My patient is operated on and restored to health—for $200. But suppose he does not have $200, or even $2. What is he to do? I have sweat blood over that question many a time.

It is outrageous that a sick man should be turned away from a hospital simply because he has no money. But is there anything unique in this? Aren't hungry people turned away from restaurants? Aren't ragged people turned away from clothing stores. It is outrageous that I should refuse to treat some people and only half-treat others, but what else can I do?

The problem here is not medical, but social and economic. The solution will come through some form of state medicine. This word is anathema, of course, to all right-thinking doctors. Nevertheless, 50 years from now, I believe that a majority of them will be on a salary. There will always be private doctors and hospitals, just as there are private schools; and most poor, sick people in the future will go to tax-supported hospitals.

Then, of course, a doctor makes mistakes, lots of mistakes. It is preposterous to think that 150,000 men selected at random should all be scientists and artists. They are not. The average doctor is a trailer, a camp-follower, who contributes nothing to medical science but merely tries, according to his lights, to apply what other men have found out. This latter work is done by a numerically negligible percentage of the profession; indeed many of them are not even in the profession. Pasteur

Political Clashes

Demand for martial law is being vigorously made by Herr Adolf Hitler's National Socialists. They declare the police throughout Germany are ineffectual in protecting them and that the Brown Shirt army is being made the victim of Communist attacks. They charge the police, which are under control of the Social Democratic regime, with favoritism to Communists and Socialists. Fascist spokesmen in vigorous speeches in recent days declare the Brown Shirt army must arm itself unless some form of protection is granted. But despite the fact that both factions are presumably unarmed, volleys from passing motorcars take their toll in the street fighting.

The Communists, although opposing martial law, vie with the Fascists in disclaiming responsibility for the 'brawls, declaring their men are being attacked. Opponents of the Fascists charge that the National Socialists are systematically causing unrest as part of a scheme to make it appear that the police are incapable of preserving law and order, and thus bring a change which will place the Hitlerites in closer control of the police.

What Shall We Name the Baby?

A SYMPOSIUM BY INTERESTING PEOPLE OF TODAY

CONDUCTED BY WILLIAM A. LEWIN

To select a suitable name for each baby that comes into the world is, indeed, an absorbing problem. Nearly 2,000,000 new babies were born last year. And yet there are less than 1,000 names to choose from. Parents search telephone directories for suggestions. Shall we create some interesting new names?

My favorite names are Marjorie, Natalie, Edna, Marilyn and Ida. Need I add that the above names belong to my wife and four daughters?

NO. 19—EDDIE CANTOR

was not a doctor at all. Is the average telephone lineman a Steinmetz, or the average power-house attendant an Edison? The outlook of the average ordinary doctor is no more akin to that of Dr. William Welch or William Osler than the physical outlook of a lowly catfish paddling around in a mudhole is akin to that of a bald eagle soaring in the empyrean. Personally, I'm one of the catfish, and I can testify that the hole is crowded.

But even the close contact and the muddy water does not blind me to the virtues of my companions. On the whole they are not a bad set of men. I know of no men who work harder to put themselves out of business. The medical profession has waged relentless war to prevent disease and improve the public health. Be it noted, in passing, that in this they have fought almost single-handed and have put such measures into effect against the determined and even violent resistance of the very public they were trying to help. If you do not believe this then go read the history of the struggle for compulsory vaccination, the segregation of communicable diseases, the sanitary disposal of sewage and waste, and a hundred other things.

Just give us time. And remember that 300 years ago we did not even know that the blood circulated.

CANADIAN LEGION TO OPPOSE REDUCTION IN PENSIONERS' RELIEF

A telegram received by Major Norman Dingle, Dominion President of the Imperial section of the Canadian Legion, Saturday morning, from the Legion headquarters, Ottawa, stating that the proposed reduction in pensioners' relief is being strenuously opposed and that representations were being made to minister of pensions and national health and maintenance of the government.

Major Dingle reported that with reference to matters of Imperial veterans every effort was being made to have the case put on the agenda for discussion at the Economic Conference, but so far unsuccessfully. Prime Minister R. B. Bennett has, however, given his assurance that he will personally discuss the situation with the delegates.

Lure of The Dirt
"Back To Farm"

After all is said and done, the farmer can at least RAISE something to eat as well as H— with the government, because it moves slow in trying to comply with the demands of the people.

No better service could be rendered Canada than by planting a robust population on its fruitful spaces. What our country needs is people to work its rich soil. The failure of farming is the failure of Canada, the land we love. If people lived directly off the soil the process of land settlement could, and would, go on indifferently to market prices. But in these days of specialty production and money exchange we depend on the free flow of money. What with buying prices enhanced by import duties, and selling prices depressed by the exclusion of return goods, it is hard enough to find even an established farmer making more than a living off his land; so that the prospect for beginners would seem to be poor. Yet such is the prevalence of unemployment in quarters where at our cost work was to have been made abundant, that some one in connection with our present government has started the wholesome but almost hopeless cry of "back to the land." It is surely a last resort for this government which, two years ago, promised that there would not be any one out of employment in a month. Its remedy for unemployment was understood to be by boosting and starting all sorts of manufactures. That was to be done by enabling the manufacturers to charge the farmers and other victims such prices as would enable them to employ the thousands who were out of work. This queer nostrum pleased enough of farmers to put a government in power that, so promised to tax them. The taxation has gone on all right. The farmers' selling prices have come down, as they had to, owing to the stagnation of commerce by duties. But the farmers' buying prices and those of their field hands have not come down in proportion. They have been bravely held up by the tariff for which so large a number of the farmers voted. And they are now confronted with debts and mortgages which today represent four bushels of wheat for every one of these obligations implied at the time they were undertaken. Anyway the farmers now on the land are not so well off as to encourage settlement. Our prescription would be: take off the duties and let the farmers get the value of their cheapened crop in cheapened goods. Make farming pay and the old expansion on workable land will set in of its itself.

Farming under modern conditions is a highly specialized occupation, and not one into which misfits and weaklings can be dumped wholesale. Even if, as is obviously the intention, with the lives of the pioneers in view the idea is to make these new settlers simply live off the land without attempting to enter the competitive farmers' market. All capable authorities are doubtful if, except in isolated instances, history can repeat itself. It is true that the pioneers were often transplanted city dwellers, unskilled in either agriculture or forestry, but they had virgin forests and soil to exploit; the woods teemed with edible game and the streams with fish—conditions no longer prevailing and both men and women had resource and initiative that it would be unreasonable to look for in the city and one-half quarts of raw linseed oil, slowly, stirring meanwhile. Keep stirring until a smooth liquid soap is produced, then gradually add one gallon of commercial kerosene, stirring constantly until the fluid is a clear dark brown. Use one-half cup of the mixture to a gallon of water.

bred factory worker brought up under our specialized economy. These qualities might be developed over a course of years, but the problem is an immediate one which will not wait for a period of apprenticeship. Meantime, people can only be planted on the land at the public expense and we generally see such dependent "mes drift back to the public relief and diversions of the cities."

One province has cordially fallen in with the government's back to the land policy, at least so far as getting federal money for that purpose is concerned. The proposal is that the money necessary for placing settlers shall be furnished in equal parts by the dominion, the province and the municipality. The Province of Quebec had great use for that money; for unfortunately, even with its vast and much boasted profits as drink seller, it cannot make ends meet. As for the municipalities, what can be expected from them, especially such new ones as have available land? Municipal contribution can only be looked for from the cities burdened with unemployment but to which the relief would be imperceptible. The eagerness of the provincial government in the matter is natural. Those who read the French press know that practically the whole of French Canadian politics is racial. Its ultimate objective, instilled into the people with their religion, is in the name of nationalism to crowd this corner of the continent with good Catholic French Canadians, with a view to ultimate ecclesiastical domination. Progress in this direction is continuous. The recipients of these semi-federal benefactions are, we read, to be carefully selected, and the selection is to be made by the parish priest; who better? Thus national funds are being used for ecclesiastical purposes in defiance of a constitutional prohibition. One of the charms of our system is that no political paper dares to talk as we are doing. This solid shepherd mass is necessarily courted by both parties and neither dares incur the displeasure of its excellent and devoted pastors.—The Canadian Weekly.

SEEK TO STABILIZE STILL FURTHER THE PRODUCTION OF OIL

OKLAHOMA CITY, July 19.—A movement will be started to further stabilize oil production in Oklahoma by endeavoring to get operators to approve plans for a reduction of 10 per cent. in allowable output when the state-wide proration committee of Midcontinent Oil & Gas Association meets in Tulsa.

Mr. Thurman Hill, member of Kansas Public Service Commission, who took the lead in the movement to reduce national production to 2,000,000 barrels daily, conferred with operators here and reported Texas operators have assured him they will do their part to bring down production.

Tentative figures call for a cut of 60,000 barrels daily for Texas, 40,000 for Oklahoma and 10,000 for Kansas, with another cut of 20,000 for California. Mr. Hill estimated daily demand for crude oil the next six months will be 2,200,000 barrels. His plan would provide this oil by 2,000,000 daily production, 150,000 barrels of imported oil and 50,000 from storage.

Mr. Hill said two major companies have assured him they would raise crude prices 25 cents a barrel, and two other companies have said they would meet any price increases.

and original way out of a situation that seems disastrous to you. "I ain't going to die!" ejaculated Uncle Noel with low-voiced intensity. "And here you're trading on my death as if I was already underground. You, my own sister's flesh and blood! Shame that it does me to admit it! You ungrateful hound! You looting, scheming thief!" The epithets stung into Elwood's consciousness. "I won't hear of it—you and your devilish proposition. And I'll beat you yet! I—I'll give my money away! Ain't no lawyers can prevent that, I reckon."

This possibility—that Uncle Noel might dispose of all his property during his lifetime—had not occurred to the young man and he paled at the thought. But reassurance came with a moment's reflection Uncle Noel who had never given away anything, might threaten, but he could not overcome the grasping habits of a lifetime. It would be practically impossible for him actually to part with his property, to cut himself off from that independence which had been the fiercely proud boast of his whole lifetime. Some of it, perhaps, but even that would take time—time to sell his rented farm lands, to turn mortgages into cash. And time was bound to work in Elwood Graves' favor—except, just now, when it was of urgent importance.

He tried persuasion again. "It's a reasonable arrangement. You must realize that what I've said is true—that you can't change your will now and make it stick. I'm not trying to trade on your death. Why, this plan would remove any incentive I might have for wishing it!"

"You admit you've been wishing it!" fumed Noel Broadbent. "Out of my sight! I'll beat you! And if you ever come around me again, I'll see you both barrels from my shotgun! Get along with you, you two-legged rat!"

Elwood Graves went. Angry and disappointed, he was not blind to the possibilities if the interview were prolonged. There was no chance now that he could persuade the old man, and there was imminent danger that he might lash him into a fury that would be fatal. Such a result would not be at all desirable! Utterly without danger to himself, too! It would make him the heir of the Broadbent property! But right now, it would not relieve his urgent need. Estates took two weeks or months to settle.

His last backward glimpse as he stepped into his car was of his uncle tottering feebly, groping, into the house. The old skinflint! The man who had called him—his own nephew—a thief! Thief, was it?

Throughout the day, Elwood Graves pondered the word resentfully. Every thought of his urgent and desperate difficulty brought him back to it. He made no attempts to raise money among his acquaintances—attempts which he knew would be met with rebuffs, and which might be recalled later as indicating a desperate need of cash. By evening, a plan, ready and perfect, had shaped itself in his mind without his conscious violation. Almost without violation he set about translating it into action, as if he were swept on by an irresistible current. "It's just the logic of events," he assured himself.

He drove immediately after supper to the garage, and stopped the car beside the gas pump. "Fill her up," he said to the attendant as he went inside. From the wall telephone, he called a number—the Clafin home—and asked for his fiancée.

"That you June? Sure, it's Elwood. Who'd you think? Listen, how'd you like a ride to-night? I've got to go to the city on a short errand. It's a hundred and fifty miles there and back. I'll make it in not more than five hours. We'll be home by one. Oh, come ahead! It's lonesome travelling alone. What if it does storm? It's a closed car. There'll be fewer cars on the road. You won't? Can't I persuade you if I come out to the house. Well, sorry. I'll see you to-morrow, anyway. Good night dear."

He hung up in satisfaction. He'd been almost certain that June would refuse to come, but there'd always been the chance. Now both she and the garage man knew that he was bound for the city—or thought they did!

He stepped into the car and drove on cityward. It was dusk by the time he was well out of town, and quite dark when he reached a crossroad, leading onto a detour. The detour would take him past Kingsbridge without leading him through it, and back, after some miles, onto the highway which led in the other direction, past the country club and then to the Better export demand, believed due to crop damage in western Europe by rain, and reports of lessening yields in western Canada through the continued hot dry weather, were believed the main causes for the rise in price.

The asst. editor of The Wainwright Star, Maurice M. Zook, is planning to be married Tuesday of this week, in Santa Fe, New Mexico, reported to be the oldest town in the U.S. We don't know as that fact will help matters much, but we wish them much success. They will continue on East through Illinois, where they will visit relatives, and intend to be home the latter part of this month. Poor kid, we have been trying to talk him out of this venture but he is following in his Dad's footsteps, so he says. We wish them much joy and happiness. We are sorry we cannot mention the name of the bride, but all we know about her is, her name is LOLA and she is positively the sweetest kid in the whole world, and all Dad can do, is to believe it.
